

Child Nutrition Director

Established in 1998, the MSBO Voluntary Certification Program supports the ongoing professional development of school business officials. The program is a mark of distinction that reflects professional achievement and demonstrates a person's dedication to his/her profession.

This voluntary certification program is sponsored by Michigan School Business Officials (MSBO), in cooperation with School Nutrition Association of Michigan (SNAM) and Michigan Department of Education (MDE).

Benefits of Child Nutrition Director Certification

The Child Nutrition Director (CND) certification:

1. provides access to information and training that is specific to Federal and State (Michigan) laws and regulation;
2. provides resources for quality child nutrition programs in Michigan schools; and
3. provides a basis for advancing professionalism of Child Nutrition Directors in Michigan Schools.

The CND Program

MSBO certification courses provide a great deal of information in a short time. They are intended to cover major points about their respective topics, offer an opportunity for questions and discussion, and provide resource information for future use.

Our recommended beginning course for Child Nutrition Director Certification is School Meals Program Requirements through MDE or School Food Service Basics through SNAM. Although anyone may benefit from this or other individual certification courses, the full program is generally intended for Child Nutrition Directors in their first 1-5 years of employment. However, any person employed in food service who meets the stated requirements may receive Child Nutrition Director Certification. There is no requirement for holding a particular position in a school district.

Requirements

This program and the courses listed have been created and reviewed by the Food Services Committee and Professional Development Committee of MSBO. An applicant for certification must be a member of MSBO.

Read the reverse side of this sheet for a listing of certification courses that are offered through MSBO, MDE and the Statewide Training Program for School Nutrition Professionals through SNAM. In some circumstances, courses from other sources may be counted toward MSBO certification. Please be aware that some courses and/or requirements may change. MSBO and the committees that created this program continue to evaluate plans and make minor modifications as deemed appropriate.

MSBO Voluntary Certification Program

MSBO's Certification Program Benefits:
